

Bio – Peter-Charles Bright

Experienced Real Estate Professional
Collaborative Member

BIOGRAPHY

Born in Brooklyn, Peter-Charles has lived New York and this experience grants a level of insight that cannot be duplicated by a database. He attended elementary school in Murray Hill, the Prep for Prep program at The Trinity School on the Upper West Side, and The Buckley School on the Upper East Side.

This personal educational path has resulted in an encyclopedic knowledge of neighborhoods, professionally complemented by 10 years working as a broker dealing with various property types, along all train lines.

Peter-Charles left the city for Phillips Exeter Academy in New Hampshire, where he developed his poetic voice and gained fluency in French. He graduated cum laude from Harvard University in 2003, where he was extremely active with community service, student leadership, and performing arts.

Social, observant, and intuitive by nature Peter-Charles easily relates to a wide variety of people; quickly understanding the needs of his clients, he prescribes only the best options, marrying their personal search criteria to existing product inventory with respect to established market trends. Additionally, Peter-Charles has a keen ability to consolidate scattered ideas into concrete plans of action; demystifying the home search process by deconstructing perceived problems into manageable issues. Peter-Charles began his career as a rental agent, has experienced success as a buyer's broker, and looks forward to serving the interests of sellers and investors as an exclusive agent.

Rentals are the core of New York's real estate market, and prove to be the key to understanding all migratory trends, they also drive the bottom line for investors. Working as a buyer's broker requires patience, knowledge, and understanding, especially with first time homebuyers financing in a competitive seller's market. Peter-Charles understands product, process, and protocol and looks to multiply his successes at KW.

Peter-Charles has a high City IQ and has travelled extensively, visiting over 10 countries including extended periods lived abroad in France, Senegal, and Sweden. Peter-Charles enjoys writing poetry, travelling, and creating timeless moments with friends.